

The Swedish Child Diabetes Foundation's Johnny Ludvigsson-prize for excellent research in childhood and adolescent diabetes

The prize winner should be a Nordic citizen (Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden) and have conducted research in diabetes

- clinically in children and adolescents and/or
- epidemiologically on childhood and adolescent diabetes and/or
- experimentally regarding Type 1 diabetes. The use of biological samples from children and adolescents and a clinical association will be of great importance in the decision

The prize winners should be nominated by at least three Nordic researchers in diabetes. The motivation should include a description of the scientific achievement (maximum 1000 words in English) and the most important (maximum 20) scientific publications. The nomination should be available for the prize committee at the latest the 1st of April the year of the prize.

The prize winner will be selected, at the latest the 1st of May the year of the prize, by a prize committee, The Swedish Child Diabetes Foundation's scientific council, during the first three years supplemented by Johnny Ludvigsson and gradually the previous prize winner/s. Thereafter, the three latest previous prize winners will be included in the prize committee.

The award includes a personal sum of 300 000 Swedish crowns and a diploma.

The prize winner will be presented on Johnny Ludvigssons birthday, yearly the 16th of October. The winner will be awarded the same day or during the later part of that year, at a ceremonious meeting in Linköping, or alternatively at a major medical conference in Sweden. The prize will be presented primarily by the protector of The Swedish Child Diabetes Foundation, Her Royal Highness Victoria, at present crown princess, secondarily by the chairman of The Swedish Child Diabetes Foundation. In conjunction with the award the prize winner shall present her/his research during 40 minutes.

The winner should the coming three years voluntarily attend the Prize committee without extra payment.

For more information, please contact kansli@barndiabetesfonden.se